VIEW POINT

Last Saturday saw us open our account in this year's Lancashire Cup Competition. We travelled the short distance to Turf Moor and within fifteen seconds new signing David Reeves had opened the scoring, before half-time he had added a second and at 2-0 it looked very healthy. Winston White inspired a second half revival and the Clarets managed to force a draw in the end.

Tuesday night's game at Wigan saw the lads struggle to find any real rhythm and a goal from Latics striker Don Page was enough to secure Wigan a slender victory.

Today of course gives us a chance to test ourselves against Second Division opposition in Don Mackay's Blackburn Rovers. They disappointingly lost out in the play-offs last season to Crystal Palace after seemingly going into the away leg with a decisive lead. Frank Stapleton has joined the Ewood ranks for the forthcoming season and he could forge a fruitful partnership with goal hungry Simon Garner.

Making their Lancs Cup debut at Burnden today could well be summer signings Kevin Rose, Tony Philliskirk and David Reeves; we wish them well in their stay with the Club.

RECOLLECTIONS

The Lancashire Cup has placed the Wanderers and the Rovers together on no less than 23 occasions with Blackburn having secured 12 victories to Bolton's 9.

It was Rovers who put an end to the Wanderers interest in the competition in their first ever season of entry in 1879/80. In those days the Lancashire Competition was the envy of the Country and its participants treated it even more importantly than the FA Cup.

Bolton's first victory over Blackburn came in the semi final of 1885 with a resounding 5-1 success at Darwen. Unfortunately Bolton were disqualified for fielding ineligible players and indeed had two teams on the ground. They decided to take a risk but were caught out by the authorities.

A year later the two teams met in the final at Deepdale with the Wanderers securing the trophy for the first time with a single goal victory.

The Sporting Chronicle reported the semi final of 1899 as follows:

"Snow was falling slightly when this match was started at Blackburn, but the wintry weather had little effect on the attendance, which numbered about 6,000. Playing with the wind in the opening half Bolton scored twice, through Anson and Nicol respectively, while one goal was obtained for Rovers by Jackson. In the second half the Rovers had a good chance of equalising from a penalty kick, but they missed the opportunity and Bolton Wanderers won by 2 goals to 1."

In the final the Wanderers went down 3-1 to Bury at Burnden.

Since the re-introduction of the competition in 1982 the Wanderers have faced Rovers on three occasions all at Burnden without success. In 1982 a John Lowey goal gave Rovers victory whilst two years later a 1-1 draw resulted with Warren Joyce equalising a Derek Fazackerley penalty.

Rovers gained a 2-1 success in 1987 with a last minute goal from John Millar. Earlier Simon Garner had given Rovers the lead before John Thomas headed the Wanderers level.
